

Hi Liz,

Wanted to give you an update on our little MiMi. She is about 10# now, has been spayed and is quite the little pistol. Her little personality is in full bloom and includes the following antics:

Attaching herself to my slipper when I am trying to walk and growling the whole time as I drag her around.
Sleeping under the covers at my feet which includes a middle of the night foot bath with a little Bichon tongue.

Playing with the cat until the cat gives her a bat.

Playing non-stop with my friends Portuguese Water Dog. My PWD and Lab steer clear and she leaves them alone. Must be some kind of doggie contract. The lab does let her clean her face though.

Taking the bath mat into the living room every time I get in the shower so when I am done.....no bath mat to step out on.

Any shoe left on the floor is hers.

Clothing too and basically anything that is not hers.

Carries her little blanket around the house in her mouth.

A couple times I found her on the dining room table and on the patio dinner table. ( she knows better now)
I saved the best for last. When she does her Bichon Blitz, which is several time in a row, she grabs her tail at the very end and does several somersaults. If she is at the top of our hill she ends up somersaulting all the way down with her tail in her mouth. It is the funniest thing you ever saw. She treats her tail as if it is not a part of her but something she sees out of the corner of her eye and is regularly walking around with it in her mouth or chasing it.

Thanks for bringing such joy in our lives. We laugh constantly laugh at her. Brian is able to pick her up, while standing, cradle her on his chest and put her to sleep in about 3 seconds while talking to her and petting her tummy. I will try to get some pics to you. She is getting a few tight curls just above the base of her tail now and her coat is gradually changing. Hope all is well with you.
